Full Stack Software Developer

My name is Noah Hoffman and I currently live in Denver, Colorado. I love everything about technology starting from the tiny microprocessors to more abstract concepts like quantum computing. Anything I can take apart and learn how it works has always interested me. I am currently working on getting my full-stack software developer certificate through Denver University as well as getting AWS certified and learning Vue.js on my free time. I have a high interest in backend development and cloud-based applications. Outside of tech, I am borderline an audiophile with how much music I listen to and always have an itch to improve my speaker setup with different equipment. If I'm not coding or listening to music then I'm usually going on bike trails with my friends or trying to soak up the sun.
